

Springtime green in the heart of Angwin. Will it be the last?

Under a proposal by Pacific Union College, a commercial complex with a hotel and a retirement center would extend onto this field, along with a subdivision of housing units stretching to the tennis courts (barely visible on the far left beyond the tree).

The alfalfa field to the right has been farmed for decades.

This would be one of four subdivisions proposed by PUC, for a total of 380 housing units, surrounding the campus.
